MUSIC.

Farewell, since we must part---------------- 8
Farewell to my harp, for its numbers are o'er 16
Come unto these yellow sands--------------- 24
Where the bee sucks, there lurk I---------- 32
Oh why art thou sleeping, Sir Huon, the brave 40
The sun his parting ray had cast----------- 48
Oh, 'tis pleasant to float on the sea-------- 56
Ruler of this awful hour------------------- 64
Though the night star be high-------------- 72
Swift as the lightning's glance, brave night--- 80
I knew a Sicilian maid--------------------- 88
A soldier's the lad for my notion----------- 96
Ye sons of freedom, awake to glory---------- 104
She never blamed him, never---------------- 112
If o'er the cruel tyrant Love--------------- 120
The moon array'd in all her pride----------- 128
Oh thou, whose love-inspiring air---------- 136
Oft I roam my garden bowers---------------- 144
Lady, the silver moon shines bright-------- 152
Mine the prize, and mine the glory---------- 160
All that's bright must fade----------------- 168
Come away to my arms with a smile and a sigh 176
By the Fealy's wave benighted,------------- 184
Fancy dipp'd her pen in dew---------------- 192
Oh Brignal banks are wild and fair---------- 200
Come, May, with all thy flowers------------ 208
On the banks of Allan Water---------------- 224
When love was a child and went idling round 232
The harp that once through Tara's hall------ 240
The vesper bell now sweetly rings---------- 248
Once a king there chanced to be------------ 256
Morning its sweets is flinging------------- 264
We met, 'twas in a crowd,------------------ 272
Allan-a-dale has no faggot for burning------ 280
Go then—'tis vain-------------------------- 288
Give me, my love, the roseate flower------- 296
Fare thee well! and if forever------------- 304
May thy lot in life be happy --------------- 312
If, after all, you still will doubt and fear me--- 320
Spirit! spirit! come to me now------------- 328
I have known thee in the sunshine---------- 336
Yes e'en in parting there's a pleasure------ 344
Hast thou not felt the wounding thorn------ 352
I cannot love another, I cannot cast aside--- 360
Why comes he not--------------------------- 368
Wind thy horn, my hunter boy--------------- 376
Shades of evening close not o'er us-------- 384
The Knight with a snowy plume-------------- 392
Oh! say not you regret--------------------- 400
Sweet guitar, thy wild notes cheer me------- 408
